There is evidently a very large party going to Torre Haute to-morrow on the cheap excursion over the Midland.

It certainly is the cheapest opportunity to visit that city and pass a delightful Sabbath there was ever offered.

James Lichtenberger, Esq., of Whitmore township, laid upon our table this morning four apples of enormous size and delicious flavor which grew upon his place.

Rev. S. Conn, who officiated at the funeral of Speaker Kerr, yesterday, was ANOTHER HOUSE ROBBERY.

About three o'clock this morning the residence of J. S. Hand, on North Main street, was entered by burglars, and a gold watch and chain, a pocket book containing valuable papers, and about twenty dollars in money, all belonging to Mr. Hand, were taken. Entrance to the house was effected by cutting away a screen at a side window, and it is supposed that the family was startled by chloroform, while the robbery was going on.

The watch which was taken was lying on a stand near the head of Mr.

Hand's bed, and his pants, in the pocket of which were the money and pocket book, were lying in a chair near by.

About the time it is supposed the robbers were in the house, Mr. Hand was awakened by the crying of his little child, and finding the light, which had been left burning, extinguished, he supposed it had gone out of itself. Mrs.

Hand requested him to relight the lamp, but both she and her husband were so sleepy, as they suppose from the effects of chloroform, that they fell asleep at once without striking the light.

While up he heard the venetian blind of the window move, making a noise as it would in being let down, which he thought at the time was occasioned by the wind. The dog also barked faintly, and that he did not make more disturbance is doubtless attributable to the fact that he was partially under the influence of chloroform.

The noise of the curtain which attracted the attention of Mr. Hand was probably occasioned by it dropping as the robber left the house.

This morning when Mr. H. arose he of course missed his pants, and, upon looking for his watch that too was gone.

Upon going to the door the pants were discovered lying on the steps with the pockets rifled of their contents.

The watch stolen was a gold, English lover, and upon the chain was a locket which was highly prized as a keepsake.

The papers taken were also of considerable value as will be seen by a card from Mr. Hand which appears in another column, stating that he is particularly desirous of recovering the watch and papers.

An Attempt at Burglary.—Some time between 12 o'clock last night and daylight this morning, Mr. Bartholomew, who lives on North Main street, was awakened by the rattling of a window shutter near his bed. He supposed at the time that the noise was occasioned by the wind; and soon went to sleep.

In a short time he was awakened again and evening, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Im-man, officiating.

Tempest in a Tea Store.—Sometimes last week Mr. Bergh of the "Western Tea Store" sold out to a Mr. Harrington, and on Tuesday went to Chicago on the excursion. As soon as the fact of this sale became known to the creditors of Bergh, they thinking that it might be a sham sale to get rid of debts, levied on the goods yesterday and removed most of them from the store. On opening some of the tea chests they were found to contain sawdust.

SOMETHING FOR SOLDIERS TO

READ.

The proofs of Governor Tilden's disloyalty to the Union in the dark days of the rebellion continue to accumulate with every day. The reader knows how dexterously and desperately the leaders have struggled to evade Tilden's responsibility for the traitorous peace resolution of 1864. But there is no explanation or denial of the Tweedie Hall speech possible. In the democratic convention held at Tweedie Hall,

Albany, on January 31st and February 1st, 1861, Mr. Tilden was a member of the Tammany delegation. That delegation introduced by a unanimous vote, some resolutions, of which the following is one:

Resolved, That we will, by all legiti-mate means, oppose disunion, and prevent any attempt on the part of the republicans in power to make any armed aggression, under the plea of enforcing the laws, or "preserving the Union," upon the southern states.

While the resolution was pending,

Sam Tilden made a speech in its support. Among other things he declared that he "for one would resist under any and all circumstances the use of force to coerce the south into the Union.

First, because it would be ineffective, and next because it would lead to a war of extermination among those who are brethren—not by the ties of country, alone, but of blood."

This is the report of the Albany Advertiser and Argus, the official democratic paper of the state of New York. It is added that "Mr. Tilden's speech was loudly applauded."

And of course it was by that crowd.

It is in order for Manton Marble to rise and explain these copperhead remarks, or to invent some cork-legged apology for them. Marble is trying to make people believe that Tilden "protested" against the peace surrender platform which he helped to draw up at the Chicago convention, on the 30th of August, 1864, but nobody has ever seen the said protest in Tilden's handwriting, nor do we believe that the man who declared in Tweedie Hall in 1861 that he "would resist, under any and all circumstances" the coercion of the south ever protested against the peace surrender platform of 1864. The brassy Hewitt and the cunning Marble cannot remove the brand of traitor to the Union from Sam Tilden's brow.—Chicago

Tribune.
